BEAUTY NEW[S]

24-KARAT-GOLD TREATMENT

The Gold Wave Treatment is available at Dr. Dennis Gross' New York practice with prices starting at $800.

Stubborn fine lines and enlarged pores, beware—you may have just met your match in Dr. Dennis Gross' new Gold Wave Treatment. Available at the celebrity dermatologist's New York-based practice, this innovative two-step treatment combines a 24-karat-gold microneedling session with LED light therapy to help stimulate collagen production and reduce the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles for a firmer, more radiant complexion. "With the microneedling procedure, we use a bunch of tiny needles infused with vitamin C and hyaluronic acid to puncture the top layer of skin so as to allow the ingredients to better penetrate the skin's surface," explains Gross. "By doing so, we help boost your body's natural production of collagen, while also protecting the skin from free radicals and environmental aggressors that can lead to aging." Blue and red LED lights are then administered not only to help the ingredients penetrate even further into the skin but to also reduce inflammation and acne-causing bacteria, resulting in a fresher complexion.

ONE-HIT WONDERS

If you need proof that the best things in life really do come in small packages look no further than ampoules. A product of the Korean beauty movement, these tiny, single-use capsules are like your favorite serum, but better.

Formulated with a higher-potency of active ingredients, these cutting-edge elixirs are designed to deliver an instant skin boost, treating everything from dull complexions to the effects of air-pollution with a single supercharged 'shot.'

Arriving on beauty counters this season is Susanne Kaufmann's new Pollution Skin Defense System: a trio of glass ampoules, each containing three active ingredients—Vitamin C, Ectoin and Q10—designed to renew the skin from within and help combat environmental aggressors, resulting in an overall more youthful complexion. Royal Fern's recently launched Phytoactive Illuminating Ampoules meanwhile, are formulated with a plant-based concentrate of Vitamin C, Chlorophyll and Niacinamide to help improve the skin's texture and tone, while also boosting collagen production for a natural lit-from-within glow that will last long after summer is over.
